Applied Behavior Analysis

ABA is a science based on the use of learning principles to improve socially important behavior. ABA practice focuses on assessing the environmental influences on behavior, assessment-based intervention, and data-based decision making. ABA has been used to address the behavioral needs of consumers in multiple areas, including general and special education, organizational behavior management, gerontology, and many more. ABA is the leading evidence-based treatment approach for autism and other developmental disabilities.

Reimbursement & Licensure

Behavior analysts have been practicing independently, without oversight from other professions, for decades. Common funding streams for services include health insurance and Medicaid, among others. BACB certificants are identified as qualified providers of ABA services in the majority of the recently passed autism health-insurance laws. BACB standards are the basis of the vast majority of existing behavior analyst licensure laws in the United States.

The BACB has received accreditation of its certification programs by the National Commission for Certifying Agencies
